Keep in mind that

- Please enclose the decision of Lantmäteriet/District Court. The decision must have become final before submitting the application for a definitive cancellation.
- If the application applies only to definitive cancellation, no consent from the spouse/partner is required.
- In connection with definitive cancellation, you can apply to register one or more new mortgages. You do not have to pay stamp duty if the total amount is lower or equal to the mortgages to be cancelled, but only for the exceeding amount, if any. You also have to pay an administrative fee for each new mortgage. If you are married or divorced, please read the following information:
  - If you are married, in most cases the consent of your spouse/partner is required. If the property is your separate property, you may enclose a document showing that no consent is required, such as a deed of gift or will confirming this. A prenuptial agreement can be enclosed unless the property is the most recent joint residence.
  - If you are divorced, but were married in the period when you owned the property, a consent may still be needed from your former spouse/partner. If the property is your separate property, you may enclose a document showing that no consent is required, such as a deed of gift or will confirming this. If the property is subject to division of joint property due to a divorce, you may enclose a copy of the deed of division of joint property.
- Please check that all information in the application is correctly filled in.
